BETHEL AND VICINITY

Miss Minta Kimball of Wilton is working for Mrs. W. B. Twaddle. Trafton Bartlett is spending a few days with relatives at Norway. Miss Rose Harvey of Milan, N. H. is visiting Mrs. Fannie B. Lovejoy. Mrs. W. R. Chapman and family arrived home from Florida Tuesday.

Perley Parker went to Lewiston Monday and had one of his fingers amputated.

A flock of wild ducks is enjoying a sojourn at the junction of Alder and Androscoggin Rivers.

The American Legion Auxiliary is having a card party at the Legion rooms, Friday night.

Rev. P. J. Clifford was in Upton to attend the funeral of Mrs. Rena Lane Wednesday morning.

R. F. and L. M. Spearrin of Portland were Sunday guests of their brother, D. H. Spearrin and wife.

The guideboard at the foot of Main Street has been repainted and put back on the old water tub.

Miss Norrine Waterhouse was the week end guest of Miss Esther Burris at her home at West Bethel.

Mrs. Addie Harmon of Scarborough, who has been visiting relatives in town, returned to her home Wednesday.

Mrs. A. H. Gibbs and daughter, Mary, went to Portland Monday to be with Mr. Gibbs, who has employment there.

Mrs. Norman Sanborn, daughter Mary, Mrs. Lucion Littlehale, and Mrs. John Gaudett were in Lewiston Saturday.

Fred Wheeler and family have moved from the Glines house on the Grover Hill road to the Blake house on Spring Street.

Mrs. Mina Harriman returned last week from South Paris, where she has been spending the winter with her brother, John, Wight.

Mrs. Laura Roberts will return to her home in China, Maine, this week, after spending the winter with her sister, Mrs. Fannie Carter.

Friends of H. N. Bragdon are glad to see him out again, after some six weeks' enforced vacation when he was confined to his home most of the time.

E. C. Smith, E. A. Grover, Lauris Morrill and W. A. Davis were among those from this vicinity in attendance at the Walker field day at South Paris Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eben S. Kilborn have returned from Portland. They have been spending several weeks there at the Lafayette since returning from Florence Villa, Fla.

The practice of dumping rubbish over the side of the steel bridge still continues to be popular. Perhaps a few convictions for this offense would help in breaking this habit.

Guy Morgan is building a new store to replace the small building formerly in use at his filling station. The floor space will be more than doubled when the new structure is completed.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Martinson of Concord, Mass., (nee Vivian Wight of Bethel), are rejoicing over the birth of a son, David Wight, on March 26, at the Emerson Hospital, Concord.

State engineers have been at work on the new road below the railroad tracks, toward Locke Mills, which has been under construction since last fall. Work will start next week on the completion of the job.

Miss Betty Wallace, who has been in the office of the Congregational Publishing Society, Boston, the last winter, arrived home Wednesday. She expects to spend the summer here with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. H. T. Wallace.

A "sugar eat" or "sugaring-off party" (call it what you will; it won't affect its sweetness) will be held at the Bethel Grange Hall, under the auspices of the Bethel Grange, from seven until nine on Saturday evening, May 4. Everyone is welcome.

"DAYLIGHT SAVING" TIME IN EFFECT NEXT WEEK

The accepted time for changing to fast time is next Saturday night. The time in the principal towns and cities, as well as all radio programs, changes then, and it is expected that it will be generally followed in Bethel. Church services in town Sunday will be on standard time.

EAMES ELECTED TO OFFICE IN BASEBALL LEAGUE

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Androscoggin Valley League baseball team representatives was held at Norway Tuesday night, when it was voted to have the league the same as last year with very few if any changes. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Kenneth Welch, Mechanic Falls
Vice President—Kirk Stowell, Bryant Pond
Secretary and Treasurer—Garard Eames, Bethel

The schedule committee is to consist of the officers and the following playing managers:

Dwight Kilgore, Norway
Gene Hebert, Mechanic Falls
Kirk Stowell, Bryant Pond
Ronald Ross, West Paris
Wilbur Myers, Bethel
Harry Delano, Oxford

This committee will meet in Norway on May 7th to draw up a schedule and formulate other plans. On May 21st each manager must present his list of players for the coming season. It was voted to have a play-off series at the end of the regular season with the first four teams in the final standing engaged in this series. The teams will draw to see where games will be played off on a 50-50 basis, including the championship game.

LITERATURE FOR THE MAINE WOODS

The Appalachian Trail Conference announces another publication which will be of considerable interest to those who seek the beauties of mountain, lake, forest, and stream of the Maine wilderness, traversed by the Appalachian Trail, the super-trail extending some 2,050 miles from Maine to Georgia. This 32-page publication, SUPPLEMENT TO GUIDE TO THE APPALACHIAN TRAIL IN MAINE was issued in April, 1935, by the Appalachian Trail Conference, 901 Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C. (30c). It describes the recent developments at Katahdin, the changes and additions in the Trail route, particularly the 5-mile side trail to the huge dome of Joe Mary Mountain, the five trails at Gull Hagas-Screw Auger, Hammond Stream Pitch, Lower Jaws, Upper Jaws, and Indian Head. The description of the route between Blanchard and Bigelow Village has been completely revised, because of a change in route between Kennebec River and Dead River.

The Conference has also issued, in printed form, two additional maps of the region traversed by the Trail. These are the Katahdin to East Branch and the Bodfish Siding to Moxie Pond Maps. A third map, The Whitecap Region, with an insert of "The Gulf," will be available in June.

During the winter, Walter D. Greene, Vice-President of the Appalachian Trail Conference, has been occupied in making some 150 large board direction and distance signs, which will be of considerable assistance to travelers along the Trail in Maine.

The Appalachian Trail Conference is making plans for a further extension westward this summer of the Trail which now terminates at Sugarloaf, Maine's second highest mountain.

Several Clubs, including the Appalachian Mountain Club and the Potomac Appalachian Trail Club of Washington, have announced trips this summer over the Trail in Maine, and it is expected that the use of the Trail will increase considerably in the next few years.

DR. CHAPMAN'S FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE HELD SUNDAY AFTERNOON

The funeral services of Dr. William Rogers Chapman will be held at the Congregational Church next Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, standard time. The services will be conducted by Rev. H. T. Wallace, assisted by Rev. Howard Hough of the First Radio Parish Church, Rev. Hilda Ives of Portland, and Rev. P. J. Clifford of Bethel. Music will be by the organist and quartette of the State Street Church of Portland.

SURPRISE SHOWER

The home of Mrs. Ordell H. Anderson was the scene of a pretty surprise shower Tuesday evening. The event was in honor of Mrs. Wilbur R. Myers (Pauline Browne) whose wedding occurred last month, and was planned by Mrs. Elton Dailey, Miss Katherine Dailey, and Mrs. Arthur Morgan. The decorations were pink and yellow. There were 38 present.

COOK INEXPENSIVE CUTS OF MEAT

For the last ten years research workers in the Bureau of Home Economics and colleges, cooperating with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, have been cooking different cuts of meats in different ways and getting men and women to taste the cooked meats and pass judgment. In this way they have learned much about the science of meat cookery.

During this winter there has been more very lean meat than usual in many markets. The total supply is smaller due to the shortage of feed and other causes. Prices are higher. More people are trying to stretch their meat dollars by buying the least expensive cuts. To get value for every penny spent on meat the cook must know her cuts, how to make each one tender and palatable, and season it skillfully.

One of the most important principles is cooking all meat slowly, using moderate temperature most of the time. Meat is a protein food, and like white of egg, is toughened by prolonged heating at a high temperature. Some of the less expensive cuts are tender enough to boil or roast, like the higher priced steaks, chops and roasts, and others can be cooked like tender meat if they are first ground. But a considerable number of the low cost meats require slow, moist cooking—pot roasting, stewing or braising. The method selected will depend on the tenderness of the cut and the amount of fat it contains. All very lean meat, whether a tender or less tender cut, needs fat added to give richness to the flavor.

GRAIN STORE ENTERED SATURDAY NIGHT

The local grain store of the J. B. Ham Co. was entered Saturday night and the office ransacked. The only article missing is a fountain pen. Entrance was gained by removing a pane of glass in the garage window in the basement, and in leaving the front door was left open.

PYTHIAN JUBILEE

Several Knights and Sisters from here attended the Western Maine Pythian Jubilee, Friday, April 19, at Rumford. This convention was the first ever to be held in Oxford County. Grand and Supreme officers were present. At the afternoon session of the Knights at the Municipal building a large class of candidates in the rank of page was worked by the degree teams of Bayard Lodge, South Portland. The Pythian Sisters had an interesting program at the Odd Fellows Hall. An excellent floor drill was presented by Golden Ray Council, Sunshine Girls, of South Portland. Officers of Mishemokwa Temple, Hanover, who assisted in the program were Ex. Junior, Ruth Lord; Protector, Marie Abbott; Guard, Lena Chapman.

The evening program at the municipal building was open to the public. An orchestra furnished music. A feature of the Jubilee was a parade at 5 o'clock, headed by a squad of the Rumford police and the drum and bugle corps of the snow shoe club. Members of different Lodges, in uniform; Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls were in the parade.

FOODS THAT YOU LIKE DO NOT MEAN HEALTH

"However highly he rates enjoyment in eating, everyone must agree that the primary function of food is the meeting of physiological needs for energy, tissue building and repair, and regulation of the body processes," says Marion D. Sweetman, Professor of Home Economics at the University of Maine. "Are our likes and dislikes adequate guides in the choice of food to meet these needs?"

"It is the odor, taste, texture, appearance, or perhaps the temperature of food which affects our senses and upon which we base our preferences. But you may ask, why do we prefer some food sensations to others?"

"Careful observation of children's reactions to new foods lead to the conclusion that it is natural for them to reject the unfamiliar. When a child refuses to eat a new food neither harmfulness nor inherent dislike is indicated.

"Menus for the family are selected to accommodate the tastes of the parents, and after weaning, the children's tastes are thus conditioned. Thus custom, training, and habit are responsible for most of our food selection. In general, it seems fair to conclude that most of the sensations we receive from foods are in themselves inadequate guides to eating for meeting the needs of the body. In fact, under modern conditions, the liking for sweetness, meats, or other food is likely to result in harmful over-indulgence.

"People who are particularly interested in good health base their food selection on the findings of reliable science rather than on personal preference.

Particularly important foods are milk and its products, vegetables, fruits, and eggs. Daily allowances should include at least one pint of milk for adults, more for children; serving of two vegetables, emphasis being put on leafy or yellow types and tomatoes; two servings of fruit and one egg, though three or four per week are perhaps sufficient if one has a serving of lean meat the other days. In other words, for optimum health and development we should eat first the recommended amounts of these foods and only then may we safely follow 'likes' in our choices."

BETHEL'S TAX RATE FIXED AT .045

Loss of Valuation and Increased Assessment Force Rate Up—$7000 Loans to be Paid

Bethel's tax rate for 1935 has been established at .045. Although this figure is two and a half mills above that of last year, it is not large compared with the burden carried by many towns. The principal causes of the small increase are a slightly lower valuation, necessary assessments for payments on temporary loans, and an increase in the overlay as the balance in the miscellaneous account Feb. 1 was more than $1300 less than in 1934. The money to be raised for temporary loans is $7000 this year, compared with $5000 in 1934. This amount was voted in the town meetings of 1931-32-33. The assessments total about $3500 over last year. The figures:

Real estate,
Resident,	$1,021,970	$1,026,600
Non-resident,	126,250	123,860

	$1,148,220	$1,150,460

EASTER SERVICES AT THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The Easter services in the Congregational Church were greatly enjoyed by large congregations both morning and evening. A committee of the Ladies' Club had decorated the pulpit platform with a profusion of Easter flowers against a background of foliage and pussy-willows. A largely augmented choir rendered two beautiful Easter anthems in the morning. The evening service, under the auspices of the Sunday School, provided an excellent musical program, with selections by the Blue Bird Orchestra under the leadership of Mrs. Young, and the choir, with a trio and duet and a men's chorus. Mrs. Tibbetts' class and Mrs. Valentine's class contributed Easter exercises and the program closed with a pageant by the young people entitled "Witnesses to the Resurrection." The committee responsible for this very successful service was composed of Mrs. Mildred Lyon, Mrs. Alger, and Miss Ida Packard.

NITRATE OF SODA POISONS ANIMALS

CAUTION!—Nitrate of soda is poisonous to cattle. This fact leads A. K. Gardner, crops specialist for the Extension Service, to make the following statement to those who use this chemical. He says:

"Occasionally an inexperienced person not realizing the situation sows nitrate of soda in the field or pasture and then turns in his cattle before the chemical can be dissolved and washed into the soil. Unfortunately results are often fatal and someone is blamed.

"In order that there should be no misunderstanding of the effect of nitrate of soda on cattle and other livestock, a warning is presented at this time. Don't leave sacks of this material where cattle have access to them. Don't allow cattle to graze a field, pasture or orchard that has been recently treated. Delay grazing until rains have thoroughly dissolved the material and leached it into the soil completely.

"This is not a recommendation to avoid the use of nitrate of soda. When properly handled, it may be a cheap and desirable source of nitrogen. We do, however, emphasize the precautions that should be taken."

HAIR-COMBING TIME

Oh dear, oh dear—this hair mine!

It's long and thick and curly and people seemed to be pointing to it late and early.

And oh my goodness, how it that comb goes yanking through! And when I whimper, mama!

"Why, child, I've got to do it!"

"Your hair's all snarled and tangled up. Stand still you silly goose. Now if you jerk and whine I'll have to spank you, Lucy."

And that's the way it always goes! My curls are such a bother. I wish my hair would go away and leave me bald, like father.

I'd like a white and shiny head with here and there some strands of hair that old comb half throw that endless trouble. And stop this endless trouble. —"Woman's World"

TWO TRAVELERS

Lizzie Y. Case, in Home and Garden

Two travelers started on a journey with trust and knowledge. One was a man with mighty hands and one a gentle maiden.

They joined their hands and vowed to be companions for a season. The gentle maiden's name was Faith.

The mighty man's was Reason. He sought all knowledge from the world.

And every world near it; All matter and all mind were his. But hers was only spirit.

If any stars were missed in Heaven His telescope could find them. But while he only found the stars She found the God behind them.

He sought for truth above, but All hidden things revealing; She only sought it woman-wise And found it in her feeling.

He said: "This earth's a rollicking ball," And so doth science prove it. He but discovered that it moves. She found the springs that make it.

He reads with geologic eye The record of the ages; Unfolding strata he translates Earth's wonder-written page.

He digs around a mountain base And measures it with plummet. She leaps it with a single bound And stands upon the summit.

He brings to light the hidden force In nature's labyrinths lurking. And binds it to his onward car. To do his mighty working.

He sends his message 'cross the earth, And down where sea gems grow. She sendeth hers to God himself Who bends His ear to listen.

All things in science, beauty, art In common they inherit; But he has only clasped the form. While she has clasped the spirit.

He tries from earth to forge a key To open the gate of heaven! That key is in the maiden's heart. And back its bolts are driven.

HAIR-COMBING TIME

Oh dear, oh dear—this hair of mine;
It's long and thick and curly;
And people seemed to be possessed
To comb it late and early.

And oh my goodness, how it hurts!
That comb goes yanking through it,
And when I whimper, mama says,
"Why, child, I've got to do it."

"Your hair's all snarled and
tangled up.
Stand still you silly gooseie,
Now if you jerk and whine like that I'll have to spank you, Lucy."

And that's the way it always goes,
My curls are such a bother
I wish my hair would go away
And leave me bald, like father.

I'd like a white and shiny head
With here and there some stubble;
I'd throw that old comb half a mile,
And stop this endless trouble.
—"Woman's World."

MIGRATION

The microbes that I gather
From the lips of Nell
I transfer to a new abode
Just by kissing Belle.
And then from Belle to Jenny,
From Jenny to Flo,
I keep the little microbes
Continually on the go.
The Osculator.

TWO TRAVELERS

Lizzie Y. Case,
in Home and Garden

Two travelers started on a tour
With trust and knowledge laden;
One was a man with mighty brain,
And one a gentle maiden.
They joined their hands and vowed
To be
Companions for a season.
The gentle maiden's name was Faith,
The mighty man's was Reason.

He sought all knowledge from this world,
And every world near it;
All matter and all mind were his,
But hers was only spirit.
If any stars were missed from Heaven
His telescope could find them;
But while he only found the stars,
She found the God behind them.

He sought for truth above, below,
All hidden things revealing;
She only sought it woman-wise,
And found it in her feeling.
He said, "This earth's a rolling ball,"

And so doth science prove it;
He but discovered that it moves,
She found the springs that move
it.

He reads with geologic eye
The record of the ages;
Unfolding strata he translates
Earth's wonder-written pages.
He digs around a mountain base
And measures it with plummet;
She leaps it with a single bound
And stands upon the summit.

He brings to light the hidden
force
In nature's labyrinths lurking,
And binds it to his onward car
To do his mighty working.

He sends his message 'cross the
earth,
And down where sea gems glisten;
She sendeth hers to God himself,
Who bends His ear to listen.

All things in science, beauty, art,
In common they inherit;
But he has only clasped the form,
While she has clasped the spirit.

He tries from earth to forge a key
To open the gate of heaven!
That key is in the maiden's heart,
And back its bolts are driven.
They part! Without her all is dark;
His knowledge vain and hollow.
For Faith has entered in with God,
Where Reason may not follow.

UPTON

Mrs. Rena Lane

Mrs. Rena Lane passed away last Sunday evening after an illness of four days. She will be greatly missed in this community. She was a willing worker in the Farm Bureau, Grange, and Ladies' Aid, and a good neighbor to all. She has served as Lecturer in the Grange for many years, and has been Home Management Leader in the Farm Bureau nearly every year since it was organized in this community.

A very successful Easter service was held at the church Sunday morning at 6 o'clock, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor. Directly after the service the Ladies' Aid served breakfast at the Library Building.

Mrs. Jennie Brown is in the C. M. G. Hospital for treatment.

Harold Peaslee, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Peaslee, who has been in the Berlin Hospital for some time for an operation for mastoid, is much better.

BETHEL NEEDS

More and Better Sidewalks—winter
and summer,
Rural Fire Protection,
Night Watchman—All the Year,
Enforced Traffic Rules,
Australasian Ballot System for Town
Meetings.

The need of a night watchman in
the Bethel Village Corporation is again emphasized since the break
at the J. B. Ham store last Saturday night. The fact that little of value was stolen and not much damage done, or that if a policeman had been on duty he might not have apprehended the guilty parties, does not alter the fact.

If for no other reason, the legalizing of the sale of liquor—a business which under ideal conditions
is generally anything but law-abiding—is bound to create a situation
requiring the employment of an efficient peace officer. The motor traffic through the town requires,
as a matter of courtesy, the presence of a man who can render friendly service. With the assistance of an officer of the right caliber, minor offenses sometimes
could be detected before harm was done and harmless pranks kept
within the confines of the "harmless" stage. The possibility of a fire in the night is much lessened
when a watchman is on duty. The longer the village gets by without
a disastrous blaze, the more likely is its occurrence.

The security of the public depends upon its protection against needless hazards. There is no
economy in saving the expense of a night policeman during the summer months.

WILSON'S MILLS

The Grange had a dance at the Town Hall April 19th, also an entertainment in the form of a Fashion Show. There were several songs. Hazel West and Russell
Bennett took the parts of Silas
and Miranda in the song, "Put On Your Old Gray Bonnet." It was all very amusing. Refreshments of ice cream, cake, sandwiches, and coffee were on sale.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Adams are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son April 12th. He has been named Jerold Cole.

Mrs. Gerald Littlehale is very sick.

They are driving the pulp out of Abbott Brook. Jesse Vashaw has charge of the driving.

Easter services were held at the Church Sunday evening by Rev.
Halliday of Erol. There was a good attendance.

George Bennett, who has been sick, is some better.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Dinner
Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual. National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

One of the natural results of depression was a gradual slowing down in corporate financing. Bond issues grew fewer and smaller,
finally disappeared almost entirely.
Last year the passage of the bitterly-debated Securities Act put an additional crimp in financing operations—provisions of the bill were
so sweeping that corporation executives were literally afraid to offer the public even the choicest securities.

During March, the bond market
began to show signs of life for the first time in several years. New security registrations totaled $281,- 000,000—a rise of 310% over February. They were not confined to small, speculative issues—five of the nation's largest corporations
filed applications exceeding $20,- 000,000 each. Leader was Southern California Edison, which applied
for an issue of $75,000,000.

Officials of the Securities and Exchange Commission were jubilant,
offered the opinion that the
financing log-jam had been broken
at last. A large number of bond men, however, were dubious. They pointed out that the issues were
not really new, that they are re-
funding operations. In other words,
the companies making the issues
were merely retiring old bonds
paying high rates of interest, to replace them with new bonds at lower rates.

SEC head Kennedy admitted that was true, but said that a period of refunding always precedes any attempt to raise "wholly new" funds,
inasmuch as corporations must adjust their financial structures to fit market conditions. Mr. Kennedy
did not say that the simplification
of SEC rules had anything to do with the increase in financing, but most observers give much of the credit to that. Last fall, one applicant for an issue was forced to fill 20,000 pages with data—which had to be assembled and compiled at the company's expense. Since the Commission revamped its rules and forms, applicants no longer have to keep their accounting departments
on 24-hour shifts in order to prepare the necessary information.
One of the largest of the March issues involved the preparation of
but 70 pages of data on the company's status and operations.

Whether or not any brand new bond issues appear in the near future, there will be continued activity of the refunding order. The Literary Digest says that it is currently predicted that $1,000,000,000
of refunding issues by private corporations will appear shortly.

It is a noteworthy fact that the scene of many new capital issues,
English security market is the Great Britain's low point in fi-

naning occurred two years before ours—and now, apparently, she is coming back a year or so ahead of us.

Much comment was occasioned
by the Federal Government's recent refusal to contest the constitutionality of the NRA in the Supreme Court when, at the Government's request, the Court dismissed the case against a lumber-
man who had deliberately refused to obey the code. Critics of the NRA were arid, friends were silent and worried.

Now both sides have cause to feel better. The government is going to the high court with another NRA case which is as important
and as clear cut as that of the dissenting lumberman.

The case involves a company
which was indicted on nineteen counts for violating the Live Poultry Code. These counts run all the way from selling diseased birds to overworking and underpaying
workers. The Manhattan Circuit Court of Appeals decision on the case—which prepared the way for a Supreme Court appeal—is interesting. The judges held that inasmuch as the chickens sold by the company crossed state lines they
were within interstate commerce,
and were legally subject to NRA control. But they also held that the working conditions of the company's employees were not an interstate affair, and so could not be regulated by the NRA or any other federal agency. It is obvious that if the Supreme Court sustains
this opinion the NRA will have won a small point and lost a great
one—without control over wages
and hours, the NRA will be virtually impotent.

The Stressa three-power conference, between Italy, France and England, has closed—and representatives assert that they have reached full agreement on ways
and means to save Europe from war.

Highlights of the parley were:
Decision to support France's appeal to the League of Nations
against Germany's treaty violation
in rearming; approval of the principle of an air pact for combined attack upon any aerial aggressor; approval of rearmament
to an extent not yet specified, for Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria.

If the conference really does assure peace it will have worked a miracle. In the belief of most authorities, who feel that no pact
can long prevent war in Europe.

Mary W. Buck of Naples was winner in the 4-H Class in the Egg Week. Sylvan Webb of Damariscotta was second; Paul Weeks of Damariscotta was third, and Russell Chandler of Nobleboro, fourth.
Prizes consisted of a silver cup, a brooder, subscriptions to a poultry
magazine, baby chicks, and cash.
Chicks were given by Clements
Broas, Winterport; Lord Bros., Ke-
zar Falls; H. Parkman White, Skowhegan; and R. D. Higgins, Donnyville.

THE BONUS COMPROMISE

Washington—Facing certain Presidential veto of any immediate cash bonus to veterans, Congress
is now studying the Harrison Bill,
which, its sponsor intimates, has White House approval. The new bill moves the maturity of outstanding bonus certificates back
seven years, from 1945 to 1938. A veteran with a certificate worth $1,000, for example, could turn it
in immediately for a 3% negotiable
government bond of the same redemption value. Then he could do
one of three things: cash the bond
at once for $765; hold it until 1938
and redeem it at par, or hold it until 1945 and get $1,115 for it. The Patman plan would call for dishing
out $2,000,000,000 at once.

THE RELIEF WRANGLE

Washington—Compliments were freely exchanged between Secretary of the Interior Ickes and Huey ("Kingfish") Long over Federal relief funds:

Said the Secretary: "The Emperor of Louisiana is not going to dictate to us how we conduct our public works program....PWA
funds will not go to build up Senator Long's political machine."

Said the Kingfish: "Ickes can go
slap-dam to hell!"

Replied the Secretary: "The trouble with Senator Long is that he is suffering from halitosis of the intellect....presuming Emperor
Long has an intellect."

Retorted the Kingfish: "I'll slam Ickes's ears back."

In the meantime, still in possession of his ears, Secretary Ickes
makes it extremely hard for Louisiana politicians to play ducks and drakes with government money by holding up $648,000 in PWA projects.

Then, turning his attention to Georgia, the Secretary cancelled
$210,000 PWA loans, paying this compliment to Governor Eugene Talmadge, firm supporter of the Kingfish:

"I don't know how to do business
with men like that. I like to do business with a man whose word
I can rely on." Harry L. Hopkins, FERA head, takes command of relief in expenditures in Georgia.

URGES MARRIED PRIESTS

New York—Staunch Catholics
rubbed their eyes this week over
an article in The Forum by "Mary O'Neill," pen name of well-known Catholic women, entitled "Should Catholic Priests Marry?" Miss
O'Neill thinks they should, points
out that priestly celibacy, dating from Pope Gregory the Great (590-604 A. D.) is not church doctrine
but only church discipline, and that Rome could easily change the rule.
"A normal way of life for Catholic priests," says Miss O'Neill, "would be likely to raise present-day religious standards," but admits that the Pope might "deplore what he would consider false reasoning on my part."

THE SPEAKER SPEAKS

Washington—Joseph W. Byrnes,
Speaker of the House of Representatives, gave his big schoolroom
a scolding when adjournments had threatened the President's Social Security Bill. Taking the floor for his first speech since assuming the gavel, the Speaker spoke:

"Do you appreciate the vitally
important work before the House?
You've got to make up your minds to stay on the job. Forget these ball games. There'll be no adjournment for the opening ball game today."

Thus, while Senators stretched
at the seventh inning, and loudly
cheered the home team, the House
remained in session, passed the omnibus Social Security Act, rejected the Townsend plan for old-age pensions and numerous amendments increasing Federal outlay
for similar purposes. The bill, providing a "more abundant life" in old-age benefits, unemployment insurance, maternal and child-welfare, now goes to the Senate.

TOWN CRIER REAPPEARS

Provincetown, Mass.—This ancient town returned to a 250-year-old practice when Amos Kubil appeared on the streets as Town Crier,
announcing a "chicken pie supper

at the Centre Methodist Episcopal Church, at 50 cents per person.
Provincetown had a town crier
long before its incorporation in 1727. Two hundred years later, the town's old wooden sidewalks were replaced with stone pavements and Crier Walter T. Smith found the going too hard, turned his big differ bell over to the local museum
put away his knee breeches, jerked
and broad brimmed Puritan hat
New America's only town crier back on the job. He gets $2 per announcement on three miles of main streets, $4 if he includes the side streets.

ANTI-WAR PROTESTS

Ann Arbor, Mich.—A thousand
students gathered before the University of Michigan Library to denounce war. Half of them took pledge never to shoulder guns. In Hill Auditorium, 900 cheered Dr.
Robert Morris Lovett, of the University of Chicago, denounce Reserve Officers Training Camps, the Versailles Treaty and William Randolph Hearst's anti-red campaign. Later in the evening 500 reassembled to burn Mr. Hearst's effigy, labelled "Public Enemy No.
1." Then Dr. Alexander G. Ruthven, Michigan's President, stepped in "University work," he said, "has been interfered with....the reputation of the University has been called into question....no more meetings will be permitted on the campus or in University building
without permission from University authorities." On top of which the Governor of Michigan signed
the Baldwin Bill, requiring the State's College instructors to give their oath of allegiance to the Constitution.

HARANGUE FROM GALLOWS

Smithland, Ky.—For the first time in 24 years, Kentucky hanged
a white man. Capital punishment
in the state is by electrocution except in offenses against women.
Such crimes call for hanging in the county where the assault occurred
and in an enclosure admitting persons. William De Boe, 23, faced his executioners at dawn; told by the Sheriff he could speak, he glared at his woman accuser as
for more than half an hour he ranged the crowd, taunted his victim with sending him to the death; admitted robbery but denied rape. "You women should see this" were almost his last words.

THE BALANCED BUDGET

London—Parliamentary sniping
took a little of the shine off the achievement of Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer,
in not only balancing the British
budget, but in showing a comfortable surplus. Shouted Morga-Jones, former school teacher and Laborite champion of the Welsh
miners: "You can't repudiate your obligations to America and as-

WALL STREET AND ORCHIDS

New York—Grim irony stalks in the situation by which the orchid
industry, almost entirely controlled by one of Wall Street's biggest banking houses, finds itself
one of the real sufferers from the collapse of the stock market. No
that folks aren't still buying blooms at from $1.50 to $6.00 each
but because society dowagers do not order $500 worth for a single event, or 5,000 blooms for a wedding among the "400." Like other enterprising industries, orchid
growers went out to find new markets, and discovered them throughout the Middle West, where still prosperous hostesses were glad to avail themselves of a luxury heretofore
enjoyed largely by Fifth Avenue. The high cost of the extreme difficulty in growing them
The seeds incubate in test tubes
and about 10% of them never bloom at all. One plant waited 4
years before a single bud appeared.

When buying cabbage, cauliflower,
flower, or similar plants, examine
the roots carefully for swelling
which indicate club root disease.
If your soil becomes infected it is practically impossible to get rid of the disease.

GOULD ACADEMY
NOTES

Examinations for the fifth six week period will be given Thursday and Friday, April 25 and 26.

Walter Grover '35 has been elected president of the senior class to fill the vacancy created when Henry Martinson, former senior class president, did not return after Easter vacation.

In the girls' volley ball games held last week, the seniors trimmed the sophomores 35-22, and the juniors won from the freshmen 32-25.

Dale Thurston '37 delivered a twenty minute speech entitled, "Social and Funeral Practices of the Ancient Egyptians," before the Ancient History class last Thursday.

Last Friday declamations were given by the following: Verna Grover, Pauline LaRue, Edward Holt, Lawrence Perry, O'Neil Robertson, Constance Philbrook, Dorothy Harvey, Rose Swett, Agnes Stanley, Hulda Stearns, Haakon Olson, Kenneth Brooks, Persis Adams, Robert Whitman, Edwin Brown, Gardner Smith, Ivan Arno.

The girls' glee club, under the direction of Miss Ruth Leavengood, will sing at a special assembly program on Friday morning, May 3, at 8:20. Friends of the school are cordially invited to attend this Chapel exercise. The club will sing the following numbers:

Recessional, Reginald DeKoven
The Lord Is My Shepherd, Koschat
The Night Wind, Dobson
Lovely Night from "Tales of Hoffman", Offenbach
Creole Love Song, Smith
The Birdland Symphony, Kieserling

The Girl Reserves elected the following officers at their business meeting held Tuesday, April 16th: President—Phyllis Davis

PREACHING THE GOSPEL

Good morning, radio audience! I am always glad to have pastors and church members "listen in," as well as others of my friends, to these Friday morning broadcasts.

It denotes sympathy as well as Christian fellowship. My sole object in these short talks is to point out the way to godliness.

After his resurrection, Jesus made it imperative to all his followers, even down to this day to "preach the gospel." I have sought to do it the greater part of my life. But it is as much your duty to obey his injunction as it is mine. Perhaps you and I are not going to stand by "the pulpit" next Sunday to preach a sermon, but Jesus left word to every one of his followers to preach the gospel! (—to tell the glad news of salvation.)

A business man once said, "I would have become a Christian twenty years ago if you followers of Christ had invited me. But no one seemed to care." What a pity! Doubtless, this illustrates many a case why people stay away from Church. They are disappointed that we show so little interest for the welfare of their souls. One invitation to someone, to attend Church is hardly sufficient in the majority of cases. The joy of our own Christian experience should urge us to persevere in our efforts to win them. Faithfulness is always rewarded sooner or later. I knew of another case where a man exclaimed, "I guess those people are Christians alright for they seem interested and happy. I have had more than a dozen invitations this week to attend prayermeeting and Sunday worship. They surely must want me with them."

I was not living here at the time, but I well recollect that Sam Records preached in this town nearly fifty years ago. And he was a mighty power for righteousness, too. Some one took an interest in him in his earlier life, and helped him to see the awfulness of his sin (for it was great). He was converted. The blood of Jesus washed away his sins, and he was called of God into the Christian ministry. It was through his kind invitation, at the close of a morning service, that I made a public stand for Jesus Christ. "Auntie" Farewell, we called her, was another of those saintly characters who used to live here. Her life was a heavenly benediction to young and old alike. O, those "Amen's"! Bethel and vicinity had a gospel team of men and women and young people who were real soul winners in those days.

The Christian Church is Christ's body, and was organized nearly two thousand years ago for no other purpose than a soul-saving institution. "Let him know,—that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death and shall hide a multitude of sins." Yes, its there friends, just turn to James 5:20. You won't find the book of James in the Old Testament. You had better turn to the latter part of the New Testament. Suppose we learn the books of the Bible. It makes it easier in looking up references.

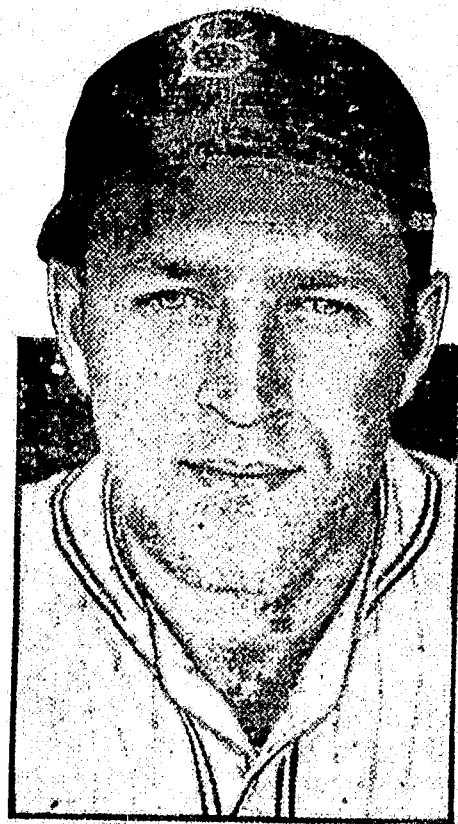

We must be social to win people, but that should simply be a means to an end. After Jesus had commissioned his followers as to how to carry on the work that he had begun, the heavens opened and he was received into glory. But, "this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." (Book of the Acts 1:11 l. h.) Let me exhort you to invite your neighbor to be a Christian. Do you say that you can't do it? Then, you need waste no time, but get down upon your knees before God and reconsecrate yourself. It ought not to embarrass you to share something good with your neighbor.

In closing, I want to add that the ancient Jews returned from a long exile to their own land and found that their beloved Jerusalem was in ruins. The faithful Nehemiah first set about to rebuild the fallen city wall and exhorted every man to build up that portion that was opposite his own house. So may we build: raise up to a beautiful Christian experience those who are next to us.

Kindly "listen in" next Friday morning to another of this series of broadcasts. "Will B. True" will send out this message over "the air" at the usual time, over station DSB. I am sending this copy to the Oxford County Citizen for publication.

Sincerely yours,
D. S. BROOKS.

Joseph Scriven

What a Friend we have in Jesus,
All our sins and griefs to bear!
What a privilege to carry
Ev'rything to God in prayer!
O what peace we often forfeit,
O what needless pain we bear,
All because we do not carry
Ev'rything to God in prayer!

Have we trials and temptations?
Is there trouble anywhere?
We should never be discouraged,
Take it to the Lord in prayer.
Can we find a friend so faithful?
Who will all our sorrows share?
Jesus knows our ev'ry weakness,
Take it to the Lord in prayer.

Are we weak and heavy laden,
Cumbered with a load of care?
Precious Saviour, still our refuge,
Take it to the Lord in prayer.
Do thy friends despise, forsake thee?
Take it to the Lord in prayer;
In His arms He'll take and shield thee,
Thou wilt find a solace there.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But all his love for their foster daughter could not shelter her childhood from the hatred of his wife, who had never wanted her. Their affairs ended in the divorce court but ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin, except for two Sunday afternoons a month. On their first day together they set out joyfully to a baseball game. A ball hit into the bleachers, struck Penelope on the nose and the neurotic Mrs. Gatlin removed her from the hospital to which her former husband had hurried her. Mrs. Gatlin spirited the child to Europe, Gatlin retired from business, willed Penelope all his money, and was about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ended his life.

CHAPTER II.—Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, rising young psychiatrist, was presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl whose terrible childhood had left her with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" was partly responsible. McNamara did not think she was a responsible criminal and obtained Burt's expert testimony in court. Even Lanny, the doctor's faithful office nurse, was won over to her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III.—Nance's criminal record outweighed Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and she was sent to San Quentin penitentiary for two years. Lanny visited her and Nance persuaded her to smuggle out a letter which a confederate stole from her handbag outside the prison walls.

CHAPTER IV.—Nance escaped, although shot, by swimming out to a lead-boat manned by friends and went to Lanny's apartment. Lanny, old Chief McNamara, who ordered her to bring Nance to his apartment and phoned for Doctor Burt.

CHAPTER V.—One of the men in the boat on which Nance escaped was of them "ex-convicts," the other bootlegger—had been wounded and they went to Burt's office, where McNamara let go and he took others to his home, ordering the injured one to care for Nance at his pal. From them he learned that Nance's real name was Penelope Gatlin. Detective Sergeant Flynn and Angellotti, seeking the ward offered for Nance's apprehension, went to Lanny's apartment search of Nance. Looking over San Quentin cell, McNamara and a blank check on a San Jose bank.

CHAPTER VI.—From the San Jose banker McNamara learned that the girl he knew as Nance Belden was Penelope Gatlin, heiress to $50,000. The banker did not know Penelope's whereabouts. Mrs. Gatlin was now the wife of a man named Merton. McNamara ordered Detective Sergeant Flynn and Angellotti to "lay off" Lanny, whom he suspected of harboring Nance.

CHAPTER VII

LANNY, very white and shaken, was in her living room, pistol hand, watching the stairs, when McNamara and Stephen came noiselessly in the back door. The chief slipped out his pistol and went unobtrusively up the stairs. Presently he called them to come up. They found him standing in the doorway leading into Lanny's guest chamber. "Take a look at that," he ordered. They looked. Lying in the bed, and asleep, was Nance Belden! Got to get her out of here," McNamara decided. "Flynn and Angellotti finally got on her all, no doubt about that—and it's mighty cold trail those two dicks will follow. I suspected this, and note she left at my house convinced it. It's just the mercy of that Flynn and Angellotti didn't open to slip into my domicile and the note. If they had I'd be sure. They can suspect all they like, but hanging it on to me another pair of boots, as the chief says."

"Can't you give the miserable coppers an office job?" Lanny asked. She was faintly provoked for his lack of initiative. Would you herd cows with a pair of horses that had won the prize?"

"Take that psychopathic nuisance Lanny, and get her down here, got to find out things or go crazy. Besides, she hasn't had any dinner."

"Let the poor lamb sleep, Dan," pleaded Lanny.

"I need a lot of sleep myself, and I can't get it until I know how, when and where Nance and her gang made the getaway. Suppose Flynn and Angellotti let them make the getaway; suppose Flynn followed the men and Angellotti followed Nance? They'd do that; they wouldn't risk getting in Dutch with me by making the pinch as the gang came out of my house. They have some loyalty and a lot of common sense, and they know which side their bread is buttered on. When they take the girl they'll not turn her in to me. They'll wait her straight back to San Quentin to the warden and let his men get the credit for recapturing her. All they want is the reward. Suppose they know she's here now and suppose they've seen me come here? Ouch! Murderation!"

"Have her down, Lanny," Stephen commanded in his operating room voice, and Lanny had no alternative save to obey. So presently

"Hello, Stevie, Old Darling."

Nance came down the stairs with her. The girl was arrayed in an old faded dressing gown of Lanny's, her hair was tousled, and she yawned sleepily.

"Hello, Stevie, old darling; hello, Dan, you great big beautiful thing. Here I am."

"Sit down," McNamara invited in honeyed accents.

So Nance sat down promptly—on his tremendous knees—put her arm around his burly neck and kissed him. "Now, don't get excited," she cooed. "I know exactly what's burning you up, but you needn't worry. One of the boys recognized Flynn and I recognized Angellotti, because he's the dick that pinched me the first time I got in Dutch. They kept circling the block in their car all the afternoon, and when it was almost dark we saw Flynn go into an alley alongside a vacant house across the street. We decided Angellotti had gone home for dinner. So we telephoned Angellotti's house and his wife said he was eating his dinner, and unless it was important to call up in fifteen minutes. So we said it wasn't important, hung up and held a conference."

"We decided the back of the house wasn't guarded, so we telephoned the boy friend that met us at the yacht harbor that night, and he came and parked in the next street. We went out your back door, leaving the light in the front room burning and slipped over the back fence. Some job for two members of the party, I'll say. Once over the fence we had to crawl through the back yard of the house that abuts against the rear of your house—and a dog bit me, but not very hard. We got out in front and into the next street before anybody could come out and see what luck the dog had had; our car was there and we beat it. We're pretty sure nobody followed us, but we drove out to the park first with our lights doused, and when we were sure nobody was trailing us, the boys brought me here. We jammed your back door, Lanny dear; then the boys said good-by to me for keeps. It seems you don't want me associating with them any more,

and they think you're right about that, Dan."

"Did your men scout the street in front of this house before pulling up in front of it?" asked McNamara sharply.

"Certainly. We circled the block twice."

"Feed our Nance, Lanny," McNamara urged happily. "She's a smart girl. How's the shoulder, dearie?"

"Fine. It'll be O. K. in another week."

"So am I," Mr. McNamara grinned horribly. "Flynn's home eating his dinner now, and Angellotti must be on guard in that alley. I'm going to mistake Angellotti for a suspicious character, lurking in the dark—and put a mark on him so I can recognize him later. He can't stand to mix with me, and get recognized, of course, so when he runs I'll fire in the air. He'll know who I am, but he'll never suspect I know who he is."

McNamara bade Nance, Lanny and Stephen goodnight and hurried away in a taxi. A block from his home he alighted and walked down the side of the street opposite his own house. He was whistling softly as he came abreast of Angellotti's hiding place, where he turned at right angles, apparently with the intention of crossing in the middle of the street to his own house. A step from the curb he halted, turned, bent his head in a listening attitude, then stepped resolutely into the alley.

"Who's there?" he demanded. Receiving no answer, he got out a small flashlight; he seemed to have some difficulty flashing it on, for he cursed softly, and suddenly a beam from the flashlight illuminated his own face for an instant, but long enough, he decided, to permit the watchful Angellotti to recognize him. The alley was empty, but in a little garden strip a large syringa bush grew, and instinct warned the chief that his prey was behind it. So he walked past it, his flashlight held close to the bush, and as he had anticipated, it was snatched from him. As he turned, one of his stout legs was jerked from under him by a man crouching low; so, before permitting himself to topple forward, McNamara dropped his good right arm to the level of his knee and swung a short, stabbing punch. He felt a cheekbone and the side of a nose; so he punched again, a little higher up, and then fell over backward. Instantly his assailant rose and fled like a doe.

"Halt! I'm an officer," McNamara shouted, and fired into the air. But the running man did not even hesitate. In the morning he sent for Angellotti for a report on a certain case, and was charmed to note a faintly lemonish spot on the Italian's left cheek and a very noticeable iridescence under the left eye. The chief grinned. "What does the other fellow look like, Angie?" he queried innocently. "He couldn't have been more'n a fly-weight or he'd have done more damage! How come you let some runt one-two you like that?"

"It was a dame I picked up for drunkenness," Angellotti lied with the glibness of long practice. Following some discussion of the report, McNamara dismissed him, and sat down to decide what to do with Nance Belden. That Flynn and Angellotti were keeping his house under surveillance he knew now; undoubtedly they would enter his house at the earliest favorable opportunity.

The chief wondered what he would do if he stood in the shoes of his two detectives. "I'd wait for a night when I wouldn't be disturbed for a couple of hours," he decided. "What night would that be? Why, Thursday night, when the board of police commissioners meet and I am in attendance there. Stephen will make his usual early evening call—and as soon as he leaves the city at an early date. The detectives were both absolutely satisfied Lanny had once given Nance sanctuary for a brief period; trust them, therefore, to keep an eye on Lanny's house."

He had in his office a telephone line that did not connect with the private exchange system in the central station, so he called Lanny on his phone at Doctor Burt's office now.

"Dan speaking, Lanny. Tomorrow morning you had better buy our pet nuisance a lot of clothes, so she'll be all ready to get out of town when I send for her. I think I'll have to fly her out and down to Tia Juana, Lower California."

"I'll think that Tia Juana stunt over," Lanny decided. "It has possibilities. Is there a good hospital there?"

"I don't think so. Why?"

"You numbskull, Dan McNamara! We have to find a quiet hospital where we can have her poor nose operated on."

"Well, if we can get her beeper restored and change that black bob of hers to a movie-tone gold, she could take Flynn and Angellotti out to dinner and they'd never suspect her."

"Stevie says her nose must be operated on first. Her present state of dissociated personality probably started in an inferiority complex, and the inferiority complex probably arose out of the knowledge that her nose made her unlovely. When it's safe to bring her back to this city, Stevie will take her soul out and look at it, dust it off, put it back and do a Little Jack Horner."

"Can he do that?" McNamara's heavy voice was freighted with awe.

"He can, provided he can find a starting point for his investigation into her past life. There is always a reason for a dissociated personality. The ground for the mental shock that causes it is usually prepared long before the psychosis occurs. Rebellious thoughts, unhappiness, brooding—all these eventually have a serious effect upon sensitive and highly intelligent people and particularly women of the hysterical type."

"All women are hysterical," McNamara said with conviction.

"You're a dear booby, Dan. Eight women out of ten can throw a fit of hysterics as easily as you'd break an egg, particularly if there is a man to be impressed. They never simulate hysterics to impress a woman, however, because they know better."

"Well, you get our girl a trousseau and warn her to keep away from the window and not to answer the doorbell, or do any telephoning, or leave the house until she has my permission. I don't expect she'll obey, so tonight when you go home have some hysterics to impress her."

"Dan, dear, I couldn't. I'm hard as a picnic egg. Did you stage your little comedy after leaving us last night?"

"I did—and it worked out exactly."

"Good gracious. Well, I'm busy. Good-by."

Nance Belden's personalities were a source of keen professional interest to Lanny, who regretted that for the present Doctor Burt was unable to share her observations with her. She had, as yet, had no opportunity for ascertaining anything regarding the girl's past history, but she had a suspicion that Nance had had advantages superior to most girls.

Her hands were the very first thing (with the exception of her poor wrecked nose) that Lanny had noticed. They were soft, shapely, small and well kept, decidedly not the hands of a factory girl. While her vocabulary was a trifle "salty," running at times to the idiom of the ill-bred and ignorant, her voice was soft, with well bred intonations. Her clothing, on the occasion of her visit to Stephen Burt's office, had been, in Lanny's judgment, in splendid taste; rich but not flashy, up to the mode but not beyond it. Then, too, Nance had a slow, leisurely walk, she knew how to enter a room, she was sure of herself at all times without display of assurance.

Thus far Lanny had observed the girl only in this showoff phase of her personality. She was amazed, therefore, on coming home from the office after her conversation with McNamara, to find her a complete changeling. As she entered the house she caught the odor of cooking, and going into the kitchen, she discovered Nance, with one of Lanny's kitchen aprons on her, preparing dinner.

"Good evening, Lanny dear," she saluted her hostess. "It occurred to me it must be a very great trial to you, coming home night after night from the office, tired, and having to prepare dinner for yourself. I'm sure you're too tired most of the time to prepare more than a very sketchy meal, and that isn't good for you." She smiled. "So I thought I'd have a nice dinner for you."

"Now, I call that real sweet, Nance."

"My name isn't Nance, Lanny. It's Penelope."

"Penelope what?"

"Penelope Gatlin. Silly old Lanny, how could you forget?"

"You've placed your finger on my dearest secret, Penelope. When I'm tired my memory fails me."

To be continued next week.

BEWARE THE TOY GUN!

Under the title, "Tragedy Lurks in Children's Use of Guns, Warning Here," Mrs. H. M. Baldwin, secretary of the Humane Society in Sioux City, Iowa, writes as follows in the "Tribune" of that city.

Two little squirrels, bushy tailed and bright of eye, entered the yard at the home of G. F. Hughes, 1123 Douglas, early last spring. They adopted the walnut tree, and were cordially welcomed by the Hughes family, who named them "Frisky" and "Skippy." Soon they were eating out of hands, and their many cunning antics were a source of pleasure to the owners of the yard and tree. They trusted everybody, and romped and played like baby kittens. The two were pals. Where Skippy went Frisky scampered too, and when tired out the two would sit close on a branch of the walnut tree and rest.

But that's all over now. Yesterday only one little squirrel was in sight when the Hughes family came home from the city. It was Frisky, and he sat huddled up near the foot of the tree close to a flower bed. He didn't notice the family, and paid no attention to their overtures. Search was begun for Skippy and his little body was found, shot to death, in the flower bed close by where his sorrowful little mate sat watching.

If Frisky could talk he might be able to tell just who the boy was who fired the shots that robbed him of his playmate and took so much joy out of the world. Perhaps he would want to know why such things are permitted, a question that is often asked by sensible human beings. Why are boys given deadly weapons and allowed to carry them up and down streets and alleys.

Not long ago a mother living on the North side told me how her little girl had lost one eye because some boy had a gun and used it. A 6-year-old boy came to the shelter with his mother one day, pale and hatless, one eye a beautiful blue, the other shattered, scarred by a shot from a gun in the hands of older boys. In one institution for the blind in California, it is reported that there are more than 300 little children sightless because their eyes were shot out by "play guns."

Fresh in our minds is the tragic death of little Robert Watron, killed by a shot from a gun in the hands of another boy, here in Sioux City. One does not place the blame so much on the children, as on the parents who provide the deadly weapons for them. Fathers have told me their reason for giving guns to their sons was to "make real men of them," and they start them out at the age of three with a toy gun, and give them a real one as soon as they are able to carry one around.

Of course, the boys may be told to shoot at tin cans or other targets, but too often the "other target" is an innocent bird or animal, and in too many cases, some other child, and the father is responsible for getting his son into trouble, and for training his son to have utter disregard for the lives and rights of other living creatures.

"Confiscated guns, and slingshots as well, seen in the offices of the juvenile court and the Humane Society, remind one there are laws governing the use of death-dealing weapons, and cases may be reported to the officials of these organizations.—Our Dumb Animals.

"Probation After Death" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 28.

The Golden Text is: "God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave: for he shall receive me" (Psalms 49:15).

Among the citations from the Bible is the following: "For this, corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality" (1 Corinthians 15:53).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Universal salvation rests on progression and probation, and is unattainable without them" (page 291:12-13).

FORD
V-8

POWER

The Ford V-8 engine has proved its superiority beyond question. It assures you of reserve power, instantly. At 50 to 60 miles per hour this engine is actually running at ease. The Ford is the only car under $2000 that gives you V-8 performance.

SAFETY

The new Ford V-8 gives you a welded, one-piece, all-steel body. Safety glass all around in all models at no extra cost. New safety-pressure brakes. New, larger, air-balloon tires that are standard equipment give greater safety on curves.

ROOMINESS

It's longer, wider and roomier. Seat-widths are increased from 1 1/2 to 5 1/2 inches. There is ample leg room front and rear. The new angular gear-shift lever permits three to sit in the front seat with comfort. Luggage space in all closed models.

COMFORT

"Front Seat Comfort" for back seat passengers—that's the result of the new "Full-floating Springbase" with "Comfort Zone Seating." All seats are now cradled between the springs, and every passenger rides in the "Comfort Zone."

BEAUTY

Outside and inside the new Ford V-8 strikes a new note in modernity and beauty. Gracefully streamlined body—with a choice of attractive body colors in durable baked enamel. Newly designed, luxurious interiors, with quality upholstery.

ECONOMY

Costs less to run than any Ford car ever built. Dual, down-draft carburetion gives "4-cylinder" gasoline economy. New crankcase ventilation increases oil economy. New weight distribution increases tire life. New rib-cooled longer-wearing brakes.
